

North London Collegiate School (SINGAPORE)

We have been living in Singapore for three years; Ichika joined North London Collegiate School (Singapore) in Grade 5.

Coming from a Japanese elementary school, Ichika had no prior international experience and initially lost confidence because of her English. However, with strong support through the EAL programme, she improved to a C1 grade and graduated from Grade 7 with sufficient proficiency. Her English teachers helped her develop a habit of keeping a diary, which had a positive impact on her learning.

NLCS (Singapore) maintains a high academic standard – there's an entrance examination to attend the school. Although the campus is relatively new, the school itself has a long history with a lot of academic achievements by its sister schools in the UK, South Korea and UAE. The modern campus allows students from KG to Grade 12 to study on the same site.

The school auditorium is one of the facilities that we are proud of. It offers professional-level theatres and auditoriums for singing and theatre productions. In this environment, we can see how the students are confident in showing their talents.

We recommend NLCS (Singapore) to families who wish for their children to study in an academically strong environment, with dedicated teachers and excellent facilities.
